POPULACE INDIGNANT AGREEMENT EXTENDS

Clash Appears to Be Imminent at St. Petersburg.

DISPLEASED AT CZAR

Charges Freely Made That Emperor
Nicholas Is Violating the Promises That Were Given Before the Elections.

St. Petersburg, May 8.—The danger of an early conflict between the government and parliament has been greatly increased by what has happened since Monday morning. The good impression produced by the official intimation of the new premier that the emperor and the government are sincerely desirous of working in harmony with parliament, which was accepted in good faith by the leaders of the Constitutional Democrats, enabling them to counsel moderation, has largely been dissipated and in its place the old feeling of mistrust has been revived. Liberals are utterly dumb-founded, in view of the semi-official assurances on the subject by the unexpected promulgation late Monday night of an obnoxious fundamental law in a slightly modified form. At one stroke it put an end to the claim which the new cabinet tried to foster, namely, that the downfall of the Witte cabinet was due to imperial disapproval of original draft of law. An article in the law exempting the crown lands from taxation and appropriation and another reserving power of amnesty for political prisoners to the emperor run counter to the already expressed will of the majority, and are bound to produce a clash.

The only commendable measure of fundamental law is a provision to the effect that imperial orders must be countersigned by the president of the council of ministers of members of cabinet whose department is affected. But so long as the cabinet is not responsible to parliament, it is easy for the emperor to dismiss an unwilling minister and replace him by one who will do his bidding.

Indignation is aroused by the emperor's attempt to build an artificial dyke around the prerogatives of the crown. This has been intensified by the action of the police Monday night in dispersing a meeting of some members of the lower house of parliament and of the upper house or new council of the empire, at the hall of the Ecological society.

ANOTHER ACCUSATION.

Maxim Gorky Charged With Participating in Uprising.

Moscow, May 8.—In addition to the accusation against Maxim Gorky of engaging in political propaganda, the procurator has charged him with participation in the December uprising here, and it is rumored that his extradition from the United States will be asked for.

The Gorky has been confiscated and prohibited from publishing pictures taken by an American photographer, showing the life led in prison by Mlle. Spiridonov, who killed Police Chief Luzhenoffsky at Tamboff. She was sentenced to be hanged, but her sentence was commuted to twenty years' imprisonment, after she had been most brutally treated by Cossack officers, one of whom was assassinated for so doing.

Miners and Operators Arrive at a Satisfactory Settlement.

AWARD IS CONTINUED

Mitchell Desired to Place the Time Limit at Two Years, but Acquiesced, and He Also Secured Concessions.

New York, May 8.—After carrying on negotiations for nearly three months the sub-committee representing the anthracite mine workers and operators of eastern Pennsylvania Monday agreed to continue the award of the strike commission for another three years, and the men will return to work as soon as it is practicable, possibly Monday.

All the miners who have not committed violence against persons or property will be re-employed, and no one will be discriminated against because of any activity he may have taken in the movement.

The agreement, it was understood, was subject to the ratification of the tri-district convention of the mine workers at Scranton, but there was not the slightest doubt that the delegates would approve the action of their representatives.

This outcome of a dispute which threatened to develop into a long, bitter struggle and paralyze a great industry, was looked upon with considerable satisfaction by the coal road presidents, as the agreement entered into is their first proposition, made early in March, in reply to the mine workers' original demands.

These miners had little to say regarding the agreement, except that it was the best they could do. They pointed out, however, that the agreement entered into is the first general agreement that has ever been signed between the operators and miners, and they look upon it as a step forward in their efforts to have regular agreements with their employers.

While the compact entered into was predicted last week, the agreement was reached without final struggle on the part of the miners to get something more. President Mitchell, in stating to the inspectors the action of the Scranton convention, asked that the proposed agreement be made for two years. In arguing for the two-year term he said the cost of living might increase considerably in three years, and that other changes in the mining industry might come that would make the present wage scale unfair to the men. The operators, in their reply, said that they felt that any contingency which might arise was covered by the award of the strike commission, and they concluded by asking that the award be continued for three. This was then agreed to.

In taking up the question of discrimination against some of the men, it was the intention of the mine owners to take back only such men as they chose to re-employ, but President Mitchell contested this point so strongly that the operators withdrew it. The first intimation that an agreement had been reached came from Mr. Baer, who left the room to have copies made of the agreement. In reply to a question, he smiled and said:

"Everything is lovely, and the goose hangs high."

After the meeting adjourned Mr. Baer handed a copy of the agreement to the representatives of the operators, who read it to the waiting newspaper men.

This is the sixth week of the suspension, and represents a loss in production of about 5,500,000 tons.

DOES BRYAN WANT THE KATY?

Proposition From Rockdale Citizen to Cooperate with this City.

The following letter, received yesterday by Mr. T. R. Batte from Col. W. B. Woody, a prominent citizen of Rockdale, is self-explanatory and suggests a very important matter for the consideration of the people of Bryan:

Rockdale, Texas, May 8, 1906.
Mr. T. R. Batte, Bryan, Texas.

Dear Sir: Are you people interested in the M. K. & T. R'y company building the old Georgetown road from Taylor to Livingston via either Rockdale or Cameron? If it is built by Rockdale it would put Bryan on the route. Get your map and you will see to run to Rockdale from Granger will put Bryan in a reasonable line to Trinity, where said company now has 80 miles of road with which they want to connect.

Now, should said road be run via Cameron, it would be most likely to run from Granger to Trinity through Cameron and Hearne. I think the road will be built soon over one or the other routes, and if Bryan wants it we would be glad to cooperate with you in the work of getting it through Rockdale and Bryan.

Respectfully,
W. B. Woody.

The Eagle does not feel warranted in screaming for a large bonus to secure another railroad at the present writing, but that Bryan is interested and immensely so in the proposed extension of the Katy needs no affirmation. The plan of cooperating with another live town for mutual benefit is also most inviting and promising of substantial results. There is no occasion in this article to go into a lengthy statement of what Bryan will suffer by the loss of more trade territory, or of what great advantage this road would be, connecting Bryan with another big railroad system, and penetrating by a short and direct line the lumber region of east Texas.

To the Eagle it appears that it would be wise for the people of Bryan to actively interest themselves in this matter without delay. A meeting of Bryan and Rockdale people and citizens of other points along the route should be held to secure statistics and other data for use at the proper time. Bryan would be a good place to hold such a meeting. Why not get busy?

MRS. LODUSKA TIEBOUT

Devout Christian Lady Passes Peacefully Away at Advanced Age.

At 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Loduska Tiebout, in her 79th year, passed peacefully away at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Walker in this city. The results of advanced age had been upon her for a long time, nevertheless she was comparatively well until last Thursday, after which she failed rapidly each day until the end came. Peacefully and without a tremor her gentle spirit took its flight.

Mrs. Tiebout was born in Giles county, Tenn., October 4, 1827, the daughter of Pulaski and Lydia Nevarre. She came to Texas in 1837 with her parents, who settled in Robertson county, and was married to Thos. B. Williams of that county August 7, 1844. Her husband died twelve years later, and she was married October 20, 1859, to Henry Tiebout at the home of James Walker in Brazos county. Mr. Tiebout died in this city June 5, 1885. Mrs. Tiebout has since resided in Bryan. She is the last of a family of eight children and her only surviving relatives are a nephew and neice, Mr. W. J. Walker and Mrs. J. N. Cole of this city. She had no children.

Mrs. Tiebout was a devout christian and a life-long member of the Methodist church. She attended services with regularity until a short time before her death. She was well beloved for her splendid character and will be sadly missed in the homes of her loved ones and by many sorrowing friends.

During her last years she made her home with Mr. and Mr. W. J. Walker, where she received every possible care and attention.

Funeral services will be conducted by Dr. I. F. Betts at the Walker home this morning at 10 o'clock, interment following at the city cemetery.

WM. HAHN DEAD.

Mr. Wm. Hahn died Monday night at his home in the Kurten community. Mr. Hahn was 64 years old and had been a resident of Brazos county twenty-four years. He leaves a family, the members of which have the sympathy of many friends. Rev. Studman arrived yesterday from Falls county to conduct the funeral services, which will be held today.

Phyle Reinstated.

Cincinnati, May 8.—Player Phyle's request for reinstatement in the Southern Baseball league was granted in a decision promulgated by the national baseball commission. Phyle had been blacklisted for charging crooked ball playing against the Southern league, but this season he presented a written retraction of such charge to the Southern league, which declared he should be reinstated if the national commission approved.

SICKNESS IN BRYAN

More Cases of Illness this Spring than in Former Years.

Physicians and druggists say there are more cases of illness in Bryan this Spring than in former years. Perhaps there is not so much serious sickness, but Spring languor, loss of appetite, headaches, sleeplessness, back-aches, weakness and debility, indigestion and other ills that result from indigestion or an overworked stomach, are more common than they have been for some years past.

This has resulted in an unusual demand for Mi-o-na stomach tablets at E.J. Jenkins. Before he felt that he could recommend this remedy, he tested it rigidly in many cases of heart-burn, indigestion, wind on the stomach, debility, and other troubles that result from a weakened digestion, with the greatest success.

In fact, Mi-o-na has been so uniformly successful in curing all stomach troubles that E.J. Jenkins gives a signed guarantee with every 50 cent box to refund the money if it does not cure.

THE DAIRY

Convenient Arrangement by Which Much Handling of Ice Is Saved.

The accompanying plans of an ice house and cream room show a very useful building. Much lifting of ice is saved, both in filling and using. The ice is put in at one end and taken out at the other. When full it is reached by entering the door in the basement which contains a dead air space, going up the flight of stairs,

EXTERIOR OF BUILDING.

and raising a trap door, which is nearly balanced by a weight and a rope hung through a small pulley. The ice, explains the Farm and Home, is thrown down the chute, which is shown in the small cut, and caught at the bottom, where it is released by letting the board come back by throwing up the lever, a. It can then be washed and drained directly under the chute, or put in the cement tank with the sawdust on, which can be drawn off through a one and one-fourth-inch molasses cut-off at bottom of tank. The tank projects six inches above the floor. The small cut also shows a foot latch for use when one has a milk pail in each hand. The house has double walls. Ventilation is provided through holes in each end of the building covered with sacks.

INDIVIDUALITY IN COWS.

Each Animal Has to Be Studied in Order to Obtain the Largest Yield of Milk.

To feed a cow so as to obtain the maximum amount of milk and butter for the greatest length of time requires more time, study and experience than most farmers are willing to give to that very necessary adjunct to the farm.

After an experience of more than 50 years, says C. A. Bird, in Farmer's Voice, I find there is much yet for me to learn about feeding and milking cows.

I once had a Shorthorn cow that gave from 40 to 50 pounds of milk per day, and kept it up for nearly nine months, but it was at the expense of the following year, and I believe it cut her usefulness short by three or four years.

I fed her during the time she gave so much milk with all the clover and timothy hay she would eat and as much bran shorts and corn chop in equal weight as she would eat up clean.

When she came into milk the next year she only gave about half as much milk as the year previous and showed so clearly the effects of overfeeding that I dried her off at the end of six months and fed her only on hay and corn fodder until she was again fresh.

She did pretty well for two years more. But I had to be very careful not to overfeed and varied her rough feed as much as possible.

I am now milking four cows—Whiteface, a Red Poll, a Shorthorn Jersey grade and a Holstein Jersey grade—and do not feed the same amount to any two of them. The Whiteface is always fat and will not eat much concentrated feed. The Red Poll will eat considerable concentrated food, but puts the most of it on in fat. The Shorthorn Jersey grade will eat a liberal feed of bran shorts and corn chop and give a good supply of rich milk. The Holstein Jersey grade has an appetite like a saw-mill—is never very fat and when in full flow of milk will give from four to five gallons of milk per day. She eats an immense amount of roughness and all the concentrated feed I have given her yet. Have been afraid to test her too far in that line.

Clean Milk for Cheese.

The question of how to obtain a clean, mild flavored cheese all the time is one of the very important considerations in solving the problem of getting the people to eat more cheese.

—George A. Smith, New York Experiment Station.

Pressed tin utensils are the most satisfactory, and in them there are no places for harmful bacteria to grow and multiply.

Consider the fence problem early.

FEED MORE FODDER.

Method of Combining Meal with Cut Fodder or Ensilage to Increase Milk Yield.

The consumption of fodder in cows should be encouraged, for the reason that it is cheaper than meal relatively. If the fodder is possessed of high palatability, as in the case of first-class clover hay, they will take enough of it to answer their needs. But suppose the clover should be a little off in palatability through being cut at too advanced a stage of growth, the cows would then consume less of it than in the other instance.

If, however, the clover in the second instance were run through a cutting box, and the meal were mixed with the clover, the increased palatability thus secured would result in increased consumption of fodder, whether the increased benefit would more than cover the cost of the increased labor would have to be determined by the conditions in each instance.

There is no question, however, but that increased consumption of fodder may be secured in this way. The practice is now common of feeding meal along with silage. It is common because convenient and in the absence of other cut food is a good plan to follow, but it is not thus fed to increase the palatability of the silage so much as to insure better digestion of the meal through ruminating on the part of the animals fed.

The Ontario feeders, says the Orange Judd Farmer, have this question brought to a fine point. Many of them cut hay and straw on corn stalks and pulp roots. These are mixed and then fed, thus securing a large consumption of fodder. The meal is added at the time of feeding.

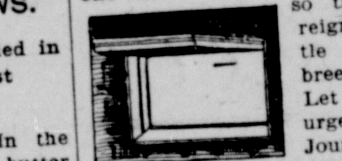

The concentrated foods are the dear foods. They are growing steadily dearer and further advance is likely to follow as the country gets older. The item of purchasing foods is coming to be so large that it cuts in severely on the profits of the dairyman. Some years ago the Minnesota dairyman could get bran for five dollars a ton in bulk, now it costs him $18 to $20.

If, therefore the dairyman can grow substitutes on the farm he should aim to do so. Where corn will grow freely, then the aim should be to grow clover and alfalfa to feed along with the corn, rather than to buy bran or shorts. If oats, barley and wheat can be grown successfully, but not corn for the grain, then grow these foods in combination and grind them for the cows.

WINDOW FOR COW SHED.

It Should Be Something More Than a Board That Slides in a Groove.

The usual window behind cattle is one of board that slides in a groove, so that darkness reigns in the quarters—a breeder of disease. Let in the light, urges the Farm Journal. A single sash to slide in a groove is better than a board window, but glass radiates heat. Make the window of double sash, with lower edge in cut, a hinge at the top and a hook in the ceiling. Such a window is all right, and can be put in by anyone who is handy with tools. It will let in the sunshine, and keep in the warmth.

Intensive Dairying.

Intensive dairying is that kind of dairying that tries to make the greatest use of the farm and farm equipment. In the United States we have formed the opinion that a man cannot afford to do dairying on land that is worth more than $100 an acre. There must be some fault with this conclusion. The European dairymen are working upon land worth $200 to $400 an acre. They are importing feed from the United States, especially from the United States, especially from the United States, for the feeding of their cows. Then they are sending their butter to England to enter into their butter to American-made butter. We can only conclude that these European dairymen are working upon a more intensive plan than the American dairymen. We know that many of them have cows of far higher quality than have the farmers of this country. Certainly an American farmer trying to produce butter at a profit from land worth $400 an acre will be compelled to use only the very best cows, if he is to realize a profit.

DAIRY WISDOM.

Fine dairy equipments never made a pound of good butter in the world. The men and women who use them tell the story.

Wooden pails should never be used, as the milk sinks into the pores and it is almost impossible to clean them thoroughly.

A cream separator should be thoroughly cleaned every time it is used. After it has been taken apart, use a brush on every part, and scald the parts in boiling water. Flushing out with water will not do.—Farm Journal.

Mature Fruit Keeps Best.

It used to be thought that apples should be picked just before ripening to have them keep the best. This is shown to be erroneous by recent experiments carried on by the United States department of agriculture. The best keeping apples and peaches are those that have attained full maturity and a good color, but which are still hard and firm when picked. The pear keeps best when it is picked after it has attained full size and before the yellow has begun to appear on it.

The Fashions of the Day

OF LATEST MODE.

There are yokes on everything, short yokes and yokes long enough to meet the corselet skirt; but, one way or another, blouse and even outside wrap must be cut up by gimp or the simulation thereof. The fancy waist here pictured seems to us most attractive, graceful and latest mode. All-over lace is used for the upper part, the lower portion is of soft messaline, a shade darker than the light-weight cloth skirt with which worn. The sleeves come well above the elbow and a band of trimming encircles the arm, giving a full puff at the shoulder. The collar is quite high, a point to note with this new style of blouse. In the street gown suggested, the princess coat is so cut up by trimming as to give the appearance of a bolero. The sleeves are very short, disclosing a puff of lingerie between coat cuff and long glove.

Speaking of short sleeves for the street, have you seen the economical silk wristlet an enterprising dealer has put forth? It is merely a long glove without covering for the hands, wrinkles its way from elbow to wrist, where it is met by many pairs of gloves and one need not feel so extravagant about having all one's sleeves abbreviated.

Flat braid trimming is very much the thing for the tailored gown, for black, white or colored gown. So far we have seen no white serges on the street, but many very fetching ones have been made up for summer days. White will continue to be immensely popular, and a white wool or mohair frock is a fine thing to have in one's summer wardrobe; there are so many cool pleasant days when one wants to look summery and yet not blue-nosed, and such a frock as this answers the bill exactly.

Fine tucks look neat and trim and we find them employed a great deal on late frocks, much used for fitting in at the waist line bodice and princess. It takes an artist to do this

Suitable for Mourning Wear

In England the wearing of mourning is much more the rule than on this side; we would say unrelieved mourning is rather the exception here. Of late at the southern resorts where people are wont to flock during the days of early spring, during the impossible days of the northern spring, there were noticeable all-white mourning costumes. These costumes were very plain, severely tailored morning dresses and simply trimmed crepe de chine in the evening. The latter were relieved only by tucks or folds of self material. This fashion of donning white on sultry days is a very sensible silk and pongee. White crepe de chine we have spoken of for the best gown, and of the trim white wash suits. Black pongee makes cool and neat little utility dresses for summer.

Ribbons are either taffeta or grosgrain, the plainest of belting is employed. Nowadays a waterproof crape is to be had and one that does not get limp and bedraggled after a little use. Concerning hats, mourning millinery is not so harsh as formerly, much soft tulle and maline are brought into play, and coarse nets used with good effect. Trim toques are made of draped crape, whose only trimming is rosettes of the material. If a hat that will afford some protection is desired, the popular French sailor shape is selected and very simply trimmed with quill and rosette. Most comfortably cool hats are of maline, the trimming perhaps the same as the foundation of the hat, and always kept down to simplicity.

Some short sleeves are seen on mourning dresses, but usually the three-quarter length is preferred.

WOMAN WHO FINDS FLATS.

Remunerative Occupation of an Entertaining Resident of New York.

One of the busiest women in the city to-day is a professional flat finder, says the New York Sun. While she is an all the year around flat hunter, just now her entire attention is devoted to hunting up quarters for women living in the suburbs or even so far away as Chicago who want to enjoy the delights of winter in New York.

"You know yourself," said the flat hunter in explaining the need of her existence, "how the glowing descriptions of agents often turn out to be dark, gloomy cells, and stylish furniture a rickety mess that you wouldn't use in your kitchen. With my knowledge of localities and agents I am able to secure some charming quarters for comparatively small commissions."

THE FLOWER OF HOPE

The rain ceased at last, but the steady downpour seemed to have washed the color out of everything, and it was a drab landscape that I looked upon as I plodded through the mire by the side of the river. The little waves, as usual, were tumbling over one another in the swift-running water, but the white tassels of the bird cherries that lined the banks now hung limp and mud-splashed. Turning aside from this depressing sight I began to climb the path through the pine wood, and leaving the beaten track came upon beauty. Trailing in long festoons down a steep bank were masses of the lesser periwinkle, the flower of hope. Sheltered by the trees overhead, the pretty mauve stars smiled serenely from their nest of shining green leaves. Clinging to the branch of a tree with one hand, I was able to pick a bunch of the flowers with the other. But a man suddenly appearing from higher up almost trod upon my head. Startled, I let go the branch and slipped ignominiously down the bank. The man leapt down by my side, and began to pick up my scattered treasures, saying in German: "Pardon, I did not see you." At first I thought he had been drinking; his eyes were bloodshot, and he had a wild, disordered air. Then I recognized him as the bashful young peasant who had stood in the tack-ground while I talked some days ago with Anton, the old working jeweler, in his shop. I had taken a brooch to be mended, and Anton was turning or polishing a gold ring on a wheel, but had ceased working to attend to me. Seeing the eyes of the peasant fixed on the ring, I had guessed that it was being done for him, and had said that I would wait, but the jeweler had insisted that there was no hurry for what he was doing. Afterwards I had heard that the peasant Johann was shortly to be married to Liza, a girl at one of the farms.

Now I noticed that he held his hat in his hand, and had filled it with periwinkles. "You, too, have been flower-gathering," I said.

"Yes, I have plucked them to make a wreath for Liza."

"What a pretty idea; how pleased she will be," I said, thinking that he meant for her wedding.

Then, to my dismay, tears rolled down the man's cheeks, and he began to sob like a child, and as I inwardly called myself a fool, he explained: "Ah, who but the good God can tell what pleases Liza now; we were to have been married by the priest to-morrow, and she will be buried instead, and here when a maid dies we give her a wreath of sinngreen."

"And I call it the flower of hope," I said, sadly.

Perhaps the man knew how sorry I felt for him, for he stammered out: "If the gracious lady would be so good as to make the wreath for Liza herself, why, Liza would be proud, and happy if she could know it."

Seeing Johann really wanted it, I helped him twine the wreath, choosing only the perfect, unfaded flowers. Later on I saw Liza; she looked very peaceful clothed in white, with the chaplet of flowers on her hair, and tall candles burning at her head and feet. It was difficult to realize that only a week ago she was tramping through the fields with her hoe. Later on still I had a talk with my friend Anton about this sorrowful ending to Johann and Liza's love tale.

"Ah, yes, indeed," said the jeweler, as he twirled a silver hatpin in the flame of his spirit lamp, "it is hard luck on Johann, harder than Fraulein knows."

"How is that?" I asked.

"Why, for two years Johann could not make up his mind whether to wed Liza at the farm or Marie at the saw-mills. He loved the one, but the other had the bigger dowry."

"He chose love?" I questioned.

"No, indeed; Marie and he loved each other, and that is where Johann's bad luck comes in, for he will not get Liza's dowry after all."

"Well, now he can marry Marie if she will have him," I said, feeling contempt for Johann.

But Anton, being a man, was more pitiful. "Ah, the poor fellow, that is just his hard luck. When his wedding day was fixed Marie married the gardener up at the Schloss, so that she should be a bride before Liza."

So I still call periwinkles flowers of hope, for when I recall Liza's pea-eul face I do not think she is to be pitied.

BOCK BEER FAD DYING OUT

Goat Pictures Not So Much in Evidence This Spring as in Former Years.

Chicago.—What has become of the bock-beer signs usually on display in Chicago at this season? One may walk up one street and down another without so much as catching a glimpse of the goat rampant which, in former years, always was as sure a harbinger of spring as robin or bluebird. Out from multicolored posters everywhere it was the goat's custom to look with eye of defiance, shaking his shaggy mane and beard at all comers. Now, beer sellers say, the call for bock beer is not a fourth as great as it was ten years ago.

Once, with the first thaws, came hundreds of calls for bock beer at all the German bars. All brewers pride themselves on good bock beer.

Bock beer, according to the Germans who sell most of it, derives its name from the fact that drinkers of the brew in Germany manifested a desire to butt defiantly with their heads at everybody or at anything whenever they became intoxicated from the drink. It is made usually in March, to be opened for use during the month succeeding.

LITTLE VISITS WITH UNCLE BY

The Heart of Things.

Through the woodland shade by the locked limbs made,
By the winding river bank;
Past the bluebells' bed and the hairbell red,
To the lush grass, tall and rank—
Straight toward the stream where the minnows gleam
And the frogs hold singing school,
Barefoot I stand, with my shirt in hand,
On the brink of "Bailey's pool."

How the mem'ry clings to the heart of things,
To the days of long ago;
How the yearnings blend 'round the pick-rel bend,
In a ceaseless ebb and flow.

There was "Waller's hole," like a great, calm bowl,
All asleep mid hills of gray,
Where the red-head's cry as he hurried by,
Flung a challenge to the jay.

Catch the heady eye of the turtle night,
As he slyly hunts for bait;
Hear the raucous fling of the fisher king
And the echo, duplicate.

See the bobber jerk! 'Tis the bull-head's work,
As he swallows deep the worms;
Have a care, my lad, for his horns are bad,
As he flops about and squirms.

Sniff the wild rose sweet as the breeze fleet,
Waft its fragrance on the air,
See the marigolds as the bed unfolds
In a golden glory there.

Ah, the zephyrs kiss, with ecstatic bliss,
The cheek of the sun-tanned boy,
He is more than kings at the heart of things,
In the God-wrought kingdom, Joy.

Through the woodland shade by the locked limbs made,
By the winding river bank;
Past the bluebells' bed and the hairbell red,
To the lush grass, tall and rank—
Straight toward the stream where the minnows gleam
And the frogs hold singing school!
Once again I stand, with my shirt in hand,
On the brink of "Bailey's pool."

The Poor Poet Man and the Millionaire.

The soul of the poet tells him he will some day produce a song to thrill the world, but the record he hands St. Peter is some cheap rag time and an unpaid laundry bill.

And yet, in these money-making, hog-killing days, who would take from the poet his throbbing dream? Happiness frequently depends upon our deceiving ourselves. If the poet will go ### hungry, scenting the fragrance of the rose, who shall say him nay? And after all, it is his stomach that is depleted. Apropos of this subject, it might be said that there are two kinds of stomachs—the union and the open-shop stomach. The union stomach is usually on strike and the open-shop will work if it can get the job. Rockefeller has a union stomach and the poet has the open-shop breadbasket. The deadly parallel is here presented:

The poet is shabby,
His trousers are "out"—
But certain it is
He's free from the gout!

He has no dyspepsia,
Headache or chills;
He taketh no tablets
Or pepsin or squills.

His hair may need cutting,
Shod scanty his feet—
But when he gets money,
The poet CAN eat!

A fashionable dowager advises women never to marry until they have seen the man's upper lip. If long and thick, she says, there is coarseness in the man's character. If the lip is thin, there is cruelty. If short and Cupid-bowed, there is delicacy. If straight and well drawn against the teeth, there is determination. What about the hair-lip?

Have you taken 'em off yet? Have you taken 'em off?
Gee, but it's hot enough!
Let us hustle 'em off now! Who's afraid of a cough?

Gosh, but this heat is tough!
Flannels on top of us,
Flannels all over us,
Blue flannels,
Gray flannels,
Pink flannels,
Union suits, vest suits, trouser suits—
All galoots!

Steam and undo us,
I'm almost cooked in this confounded shirt—
Let us hustle 'em off, fellers! Say, w'e'll!

The women probably got the idea of carrying their money in their where they do—from Santa Claus.

One More Unfortunate.

Willie—What ye cryin' about, Benny?

Benny—Ma—she—(boo noo!) she—(BOO HOO!) Licked me!

Willie—That just beats time, don't it? But what's eatin' ye; hain't ye got no grandmother?

Woolen Will Wear IN ALL WEATHERS

Argue as they will, one fact remains: Cotton adulterated cloth will neither keep its shape nor wear under any conditions. Pure woolen cloth will. Our Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes are made of pure woolsens, tested by the wool test, which is the beginning of all

Stein-Bloch Clothes

The only reason why cotton is substituted for wool in mercerized fabrics is to cheapen the goods. A house is no stronger than its foundation. So with clothes. Cheap fabrics mean cheap clothes; and no matter how shrewdly they are tailored, they will be untrustworthy. Stein-Bloch employ no mercerized or cotton adulterated fabrics. Their goods are pure caustic-tested wool, and the clothes made from them wear and keep their shape.

The Stein-Bloch Wool Test

The Stein-Bloch Wool Test consists of a boiling solution of water and caustic potash, the chemical action of which dissolves wool but not cotton. The two samples here shown were originally of the same length. The test proved one to be all wool, consuming the part immersed and leaving only the blackened edge. The other proved to be an adulteration containing a large per cent of mercerized cotton.

Kirschbaum Suits $10.00 $12.50 $15.00

Kirschbaum Clothing Plant is the largest in the world, and these clothes from $10.00 to $15.00 have no equal. Give us a look, we can please you.

Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach and expose the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucus instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

ALL SORRY.

People of Philippines Are Profoundly

Moved by San Francisco Disaster.

Manila, May 8.—Governor General Ide cabled Secretary of War Taft as follows: "All the people of the Philippines, irrespective of nationality, are profoundly moved by the terrific disaster which has befallen San Francisco and her inhabitants. In the name of all I extend the most profound sympathy to sufferers, and request you to make known this fact to the people of San Francisco."

"I will forward in a few days a draft for funds contributed by officials, citizens and organizations without respect to nationality. It is not such a contribution as we wish to make, but an evidence of the deep sympathy we feel. Our only regret is poverty of people prevents us rendering greater assistance. Every material operation of contribution comes from the Filipinos, who initiated the movement."

TWENTY-TWO HUNDRED.

Up to May 1, inclusive, That Number of Carloads Received.

San Francisco, May 8.—Total goods sent to this city by railroads up to and including May 1 amount to 2,200 carloads, according to Dr. Edward T. Devine, head of the Red Cross work. "This represents a large amount of supplies," he said, "but nothing like the amount we have to have."

Safety deposit boxes in several big institutions that provide these proof receptacles for public are accessible. The vaults opened were those of the Union Trust, Crocker Woolworth, Canadian Bank of Commerce and Mercantile Trust institutions, steel and asbestos performed their trust well. All contents were found intact. Nothing was harmed.

CONTEMPT CHARGES.

Assistant Attorney General Lightfoot Will Answer Them.

Austin, May 8.—Assistant Attorney General Lightfoot stated that he would go to Fort Worth to answer contempt of court charges.

It is stated that the full purport of the agreement as to certain dismissals in connection with anti-trust cases will come to light within the next few days. Cases were set for next Tuesday by Judge Brooks in the Twenty-sixth district court.

Receivership and injunction proceedings will be instituted in the Fifty-third district court by J. F. Salisbury against the Colonial Security company of St. Louis. The court appointed J. H. Hart receiver. A restraining order was granted enjoining State Treasurer Robbins from paying out any deposit funds in the treasury pending the receivership.

EL PASO SELECTED.

Republican State Convention Will Be Held in That City.

San Antonio, May 8.—The Republican state executive committee was in session here Tuesday, Cecil Lyon presiding. On invitation of J. A. Smith, El Paso was selected as the convention place by thirteen votes against ten for Fort Worth. A resolution was adopted declaring that all nominations by Republicans for state, district and county offices be made by conventions instead of primary elections.

The convention will be held, according to the Texas election law, the second Tuesday in August.

ALLISON AMENDMENTS.

They Will Be Printed and Lie Over Until Regularly Reported.

Washington, May 8.—Senator Culom Tuesday presented the Allison amendments to the railroad rate bill. They will be printed and lie over until they are reported in their regular order.

Discussion of Elkins' amendment to the railroad rate bill was resumed in the senate Tuesday. This amendment proposes to prevent interstate carriers from owning and operating coal mine commodities which they transport.

KICKED "OLD GLORY."

"King of Bums" Mobbed and Clubbed and Now Breaks Rock.

New York, May 8.—An unknown man who walked down Main street, Hoboken, kicking an American flag, was mobbed by indignant citizens, clubbed by a policeman, sentenced by the court and put to work breaking stones in the penitentiary before the day was over. The man refused to disclose his identity when questioned by the court, but said he was the "king of bums" and came from "nowhere."

LOST HIS WIFE.

Mrs. Edmundson and Her Sister Perished at Frisco.

Denison, May 8.—Jesse L. Edmundson, a long time railway editor of the Denison Herald and at present city editor of the Los Angeles Evening News, writes a friend here that he lost his wife and sister-in-law during the San Francisco disaster. Mrs. Edmundson was a beautiful and cultured lady and accomplished pianist.

Found Dead in Bed.

DOCTRINAL FAITH.

Resolution Concerning Preparation of New Statement Introduced.

Birmingham, Ala., May 8.—A resolution concerning the preparation of the doctrinal faith of Methodism was introduced by W. F. Tillitt and W. R. Lambuth of the Tennessee conference to the quadrennial Methodist conference. It is as follows:

"While reaffirming our absolute faith in our articles of religion, we do not believe that in their present form they meet the existing needs of our church as a statement of the doctrinal system of Evangelical Methodist Arminianism. Believing that the different branches of world-wide Methodism that are represented in the economical Methodist conference can and should unite in the preparation of such a statement of our common faith as is needed, and believing that this general conference should take such steps as may be necessary to secure in the early future the co-operation of other representative Methodist churches in the preparation of a new statement of our faith, we therefore offer the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the college of bishops be requested to appoint a commission of five members, one of whom shall be a bishop, which shall invite other branches of Methodism to unite with us in the preparation of such a statement of our faith and such an expression of our doctrinal system as is called for in our day, and this commission shall represent our church in the preparation of the same."

With the introduction of the resolution a motion was made to create a special committee to consider it. The committee consists of the two ministers who offered the resolution and Rev. C. W. Carter of Arcadia, La.

A complaint against the episcopal administration of Bishop H. C. Morrison was also read, and formally filed with the episcopal committee. It relates to certain differences between the Rayne Memorial church of New Orleans, and is signed by a majority of the stewards of that church, who are said to have resigned because Rev. Richard Wilkinson, the pastor, was transferred from Rayne church to a church at Monroe, La.

A complaint was also filed by the German mission conference in which the administration of a bishop is questioned.

Among the memorials presented were the following: From woman's home mission board regarding certain changes desired in the constitution; also a memorial concerning a general board of missions equally of men and women; Holston conference, petitioning for change in discipline as to baptism of children; from Memphis conference as to additions in general conference; from finance committee, concerning superannuated endowment funds; from board of missions, providing for a missionary society of instruction in Sunday schools; from Memphis conference, relative to a plan for a system of finances; from North Texas, providing for appointment of students as preachers; a resolution providing that six years be fixed as the time limit for pastors, instead of four; by the Holston conference, for a progressive movement for betterment of schools and homes. The Kentucky conference, asked that the appointment of presiding elders be for more than four years.

Among the resolutions introduced was one from the publishing interests asking for the extension of the Epworth league asking for the appointment of delegates to their next convention. It was referred.

A resolution was introduced to increase the salaries of bishops to $4,000 per year.

BISHOP KEY IN CHAIR.

Vice-President Fairbanks Has Again Postponed Visit.

Birmingham, Ala., May 8.—Bishop J. S. Key of Sherman, Tex., presided over the fifth day's session of the Methodist quadrennial conference.

Vice President Fairbanks telephoned from Washington that his official duties would probably prevent him being present Monday next, and that it was impossible for him to state at this time just when he could come. However, he hoped soon to be able to fix a definite date. He will be tendered a banquet by the Commercial club.

It was announced that James Sutherland of the Pacific conference, who had been delayed by the earthquake, had arrived.

The committee on itinerary reported non-concurrence in the resolution enlarging the functions of annual conferences and regulating exercise of transfers by bishops. The committee also non-concurred in the suggestion made in the number of memorials that authority be restored to quarterly conferences to license local preachers. These memorials came from the Memphis, North Mississippi and Texas conferences.

The committee on education recommended non-concurrence in a resolution relating to an increase in membership of board of education from fifteen to seventeen. It also non-concurred in the Indian mission conference memorial to make certain amendments to the discipline.

COUNTER CONCESSIONS.

Several Restrictions Will Be placed on Review Proposition.

Washington, May 8.—The situation of the railroad rate bill took another change Monday, and at the same time there was an additional step toward final agreement as to what the judicial review amendment shall be. The Allison compromise proposition met with much determined opposition from those senators who have fought against a "broad" court review that, despite the president, this acceptance of it, and his declaration that other provisions he had advocated were not vital, an agreement was reached by which several restrictions will be placed on the review proposition. These were agreed on in consequence of many informal conferences on the floor of the senate during the debate. The result is that in return for the amendment conferring jurisdiction of circuit courts to review orders of the commission, friends of the bill demanded, and by agreement of senate leaders, will secure counter concessions.

BIG DISTRIBUTION.

Million Dollars Soon to Be Paid to Choctaws and Chickasaws.

Muskogee, May 8.—A million dollars for the Choctaws and Chickasaws was the announcement made at the Indian agency today. The disbursement of this vast fund will begin June 1, and it will take all summer to complete the payments. There are 25,500 Choctaws and Chickasaws on the Indian pay roll, and each of these will get $35. This $5 per capita more than was expected. As families average five members, this means $175 each.

This payment will include all Indians of the two nations and the Mississippi Choctaws. It will make great prosperity in these nations because each Indian family will number five, which means $175 cash to each family. The money due deceased Indians will be paid to the executors of their estates and of minors to legal guardians.
